

Purim Costume Ball —

Thursday, March 8

6:30 pm Snacks and
Costume Fittings

7 pm Maariv, Megillah Reading and Schpiel, followed by Gay Iz Mir

CSZ's Singing Havurah presents a unique, never seen before, just like the old days, Purim Schpiel Extravaganza with masks and jugglers and Queens galore!!! Service and Megillah reading followed by our very own klezmer band, Gay Iz Mir, adding gay Yiddishkeit to any Purim Ball.

Now if you're a queen without a diamond tiara, no need to worry, costume guru Sarah Goodman will set up shop before the ball so you can choose from leopard skin, boas, cowboy hats and chaps, purple basketball uniforms, Joseph's multi-colored coat and Queen Esther gowns, all in preparation for CSZ's costume pageant.

Juggling for the Complete Klutz —

taught by Sara Felder Noily

Sunday, March 4 - 11am - 2pm

Bagel brunch will be provided.

You may be wondering what juggling and Judaism have in common. Did you know that jugglers are mentioned in the Talmud five times? Many, many years ago rabbis juggled at weddings to add joy to the occasion. Juggling is fun and surprisingly easy to learn. All are welcome to this class. The juggling class will participate in the Purim Ball on March 8.

Second Annual Open — House Shabbat Dinner

In conjunction with Shabbat Across America. With singer / songwriter and friend of the community, Marsha Attie.

Friday, March 23, at 6:30 pm

Only $5 - $10 per person (sliding scale)

The Sha'ar Zahav Open House Shabbat Dinner is the perfect opportunity to grab those friends and relatives who always say they want to come to CSZ but never actually have. Or the best friend who wants to meet a nice Jewish boy at shul but never goes to shul. The evening will be filled with Shabbat rituals, a vegetarian dinner, singing and a traditional Shabbat service CSZ-style, followed by an oneg. Share the spirit, the learning, the prayer, and celebration that you have found at CSZ, and grab a friend!

This dinner is catered so please RSVP and send your check for you and a buddy by March 9, to Dahlia Gross (415/575-4961 or CSZDahlia@yahoo.com).

Pre-registration is required.

Annual Congregational Seder —

Congregation Sha'ar Zahav holds a community seder each year on the second night of Pesach. We will be celebrating this holiday of our liberation on Sunday, April 8 at the Fort Mason Officers' Club. The cost this year is $36 for adult CSZ members, $18 for children and $45 for non-CSZ members. Congregation Sha'ar Zahav offers subsidies to those who are unable to afford the full cost, and opportunities are available to donate towards those subsidies. Please make certain to get your reservations for this popular event in to the CSZ office no later than March 20. Please contact Lea Salem at (415/861-6932), if you have any questions.

First Night — Passover Potluck Seder

Saturday, April 7

Congregation Sha'ar Zahav'niks like to spend the holidays together. Purim, Hanukah, Rosh Hashanah and Shabbat are only a few of the reasons we throw a party or have a service. But on the first night of Passover, one of the most important holidays of the year, we traditionally do not come together. In fact, most synagogues in the United States also assume their congregants have other places to be and thus choose to have the congregational seder on the second night. There are so many of us, however, who do not have a place to go. Either our family is too far away or we don't have family. Perhaps our partner is not Jewish, the work too much or any number of other reasons. But we shouldn't be alone on Passover. Our tradition says it is a mitzvah (commandment) to let a stranger into your home on Passover. I think we can also add that it is a mitzvah to let a fellow congregant, a friend, into your home as well.

Can you offer your home for a potluck First Night Seder? Would you like to attend a CSZ First Night Potluck Seder? Either way, you don't have to do too much work or necessarily lead the seder - that's the beauty of the potluck. And you'll get a lot of support from CSZ staff for preparation. If you are interested in hosting or attending please call CSZ Program Director Dahlia Gross (415/575-4961 or CSZDahlia@yahoo.com).

Rabbi Angel

"And the old shall dream dreams and the youth shall see visions and our hopes shall rise up to the sky. We will live for today and we must build for tomorrow. Give us time. Give us strength. Give us life." Debbie Friedman's adaptation of Joel 3:1

As I write this column, I am on the plane back from Washington, D.C., where I have spent four days with four of our amazing CSZ teens: Benjie Achtenberg, Ruby Cymrot-Wu, Annie Downs and Jonah Levy. We gathered together with other teens and their rabbis for a L'Taken [to repair] Seminar, sponsored by the Religious Action Center, the Reform Movement's social action, lobbying arm on Capital Hill which represents 1.2 million Reform Jews, 900 UAHC congregations and 1800 rabbis. Throughout the long weekend, we joined in study, prayer and action; making our voices heard and presence felt on matters of justice, fairness and human decency; and reminding legislators and ourselves of the moral imperatives which bind us to each other and to the Divine ideal.

This has been an exhilarating weekend for me, getting to know our teens, watching them organize their thoughts and ultimately deliver with confidence and eloquence statements about homelessness, campaign finance reform and the peace process in the Middle East. Each of them spoke from their notes and from their hearts, intelligently and passionately about these issues, representing our congregation in an unforgettable way. I have no doubt that the aides to Senators Feinstein and Boxer and Representative Pelosi with whom we met will be reporting to their bosses what impressive visits they had with our extraordinary Jewish youth.

Throughout the trip, there were many people, who after an encounter with our group, came to me with their

by Benjie Achtenberg, Ruby Cymrot-Wu, Annie Downs and Jonah Levy

We have just returned from Washington, D.C. where we participated in the L'Taken Seminar sponsored by the Reform Movement's Religious Action Center. Held annually, this educational and inspirational conference brings together 300 Jewish teenagers from around the country to study a number of topics, including gun control, campaign finance reform, reproductive rights, separation of church and state and many other issues that are of concern to Jews, teens and all citizens.

L'taken Seminar - Learning to Speak Out

The weekend was full of learning opportunities. We met with homeless people who came to speak to us about their plight. We enacted a simulation game that showed us how two sides of an issue, the pro-gun control side and the anti-gun control side, go about lobbying. In this we came to understand why we are in such grave need of campaign finance reform. In the simulation we did role-playing and letter writing, rallying and lobbying on either side. This activity allowed us to bond with our peers, while at the same time instructing us on the issues about which we might choose to lobby.

Annie Downs, Benjie Achtenberg, Rabbi Camille Angel, Jonah Levy, Ruby Cymrot-Wu

After gaining information on these pressing subjects, we then selected a few of them to study in more depth, so that we could prepare to discuss them with our senators and representatives. On Saturday, we all loaded onto a bus and went to the Holocaust Museum. For two of us this wasn't our first visit. But we all left learning something new and becoming even more aware of the tragedy. Each of us copied down a different story about non-Jews helping to save Jews during the Holocaust as a hopeful reminder that even in the midst of terrible evil there were examples of righteousness. One story that especially touched our hearts was of two sisters hiding thirteen Jews in their home, despite the fact that there was a Nazi hospital across the street and an SS

Officer living in their house. The hidden Jews all survived thanks to these sisters.

After the museum we went to a very special Havdalah service at the Lincoln Memorial. Despite the frigid weather, we had a lovely service with candles and readings and songs of peace. We snuck in a visit to the Korean and Vietnam Memorials, both of which were exquisite and moving. On Sunday morning, we co-led services with the contingent from Rodeph Sholom, Rabbi Angel's former congregation. One rabbi chaperoning the RAC trip said that our rendition of "Oseh Shalom" was especially beautiful. Over the course of the weekend, all of us became good friends with the kids from Rodeph Sholom, so it was great to be able to lead services with them.

We spent the rest of that day preparing our topics to discuss with members of Congress on Monday. We all studied different Jewish text on topics such as gay and lesbian issues, school vouchers,

Cloning the Advance

David Gellman

Every year a growing segment of Sha'ar Zahav's membership spends a weekend in the country participating in what we have come to call the "Advance" - CSZ speak for what other organizations refer to as a retreat. What began many years ago as a last-ditch effort to help a fractious and inexperienced Va'ad learn to work together as an effective body has, over time, become a major annual event. In a sunny and relaxed environment, current leaders and other members who demonstrate their commitment to, and involvement in CSZ, work together to address issues of concern to the congregation, get to know each other better through informal social activities, and renew our spiritual connection to Sha'ar Zahav.

The theme of last year's weekend was "L'dor Vador: Developing New Partnerships from Generation to Generation." One obvious focus was our new partnership with Rabbi Angel. With the careful planning of a dedicated group of volunteers and the enthusiastic participation of nearly 70 members, the 2000 Advance offered a wonderful initiation for Rabbi Angel, who joined us on her first morning in California, having arrived from New York to see her new home for the first time (in the dark) only a few hours earlier. Given the extraordinary volunteer and professional talent upon which we have come to rely over the years, the Advance was in every respect a wonderful event, re-energizing its participants to tackle another year of moving CSZ forward.

However, all is not sunshine and daffodils. The annual Advance is in danger of becoming a victim of its own success. The event is so popular that each year potential attendance exceeds the number of available places, and we are obliged to create a waiting list for members who would like to participate. The growing size of the event limits the number of available affordable venues, and puts planning under stress. Simple, fundamental elements, such as learning each other's names and backgrounds, take

Art Shabbaton Weekend

April 20-22

Since the days of Miriam, Jews have used song, dance and artfully crafted objects to express their joy and awe spiritually. Now here's our chance. No prior art experience necessary!

Join fellow CSZ'ers from April 20 to 22 as we create a wall hanging which will illustrate our community's values and hopes. Come share a Havdalah service followed by Israeli folk dance lessons with our own swinging Gay Iz Mir klezmer band. Join us for services and workshops developing midrash through prose, poetry, music, visual arts, dance and the creation of ritual art objects. This is an entire weekend during which we can enhance personal reflection as well as enrich and embellish our sacred space. Registration and a donation will be required to participate in the weekend. Invitations will be sent out soon.

Calling all artists! We need your ideas to help shape our first annual celebration of the CSZ arts. We need workshop leaders for what you do: from Jewish art history to drama to cookie baking. Whatever! Join Phyllis Mintzer, Barbara Cymrot and Jeanette Nichols at a meeting at Barbara's on March 12. Call 415/ 621-5350 for directions.

Parlor Sessions, Round Two

During the past few months, approximately 70 congregants took advantage of a series of "Get to Know Your Rabbi" parlor sessions in order to meet Rabbi Angel. Whether held at a congregant's home or in the shul, each of these sessions had a similar format. Those in attendance related the story of how they came to Sha'ar Zahav. In the process, Rabbi Angel got to know a bit about each person and what it is about Sha'ar Zahav that each had found or is seeking. Rabbi Angel then shared her story - events from her history which contributed to her personal and professional development and ultimately to her coming to Sha'ar Zahav. As an added benefit, members also made connections with other members as they heard experiences which intrigued them - whether similar or different from their own lives. Another round of parlor sessions has been scheduled for coming months, but with a twist. We've been listening to member comments and requests and, as a result, while some sessions will be for the general membership, others are targeted for particular groups of members. While these latter sessions have no "requirements," they are being created to provide a safe space for members of those groups and their friends to feel comfortable in sharing freely the particular experiences which have brought them to Sha'ar Zahav. The sessions are:

- April 3, 6:30 - 9:30 pm

Senior Men.

If you are interested in attending one of these sessions, please call the office to reserve a spot and for location. Rabbi Angel plans to continue with these parlor sessions periodically to meet more of our current members, new members and newly active members. If this is a good time for you to meet the rabbi, to share your story with her and with some of your co-congregants, please plan on attending one of these sessions this winter and spring.

Shalom Kadima and Sha'ar Zahav Families

by Riqi Kosovske

I am very excited to come aboard as the new Director of Children's Education. I am looking forward to getting to know you all in the coming months and thought I would take this opportunity to introduce myself. I have just spent two months in Jerusalem, which has been quite an experience during the current crisis. I am a Jewish educator from the East Bay, where I have lived and worked for the last six years. Before coming to Sha'ar Zahav, I was the director of Camp Kadima of Fremont for three years and Camp Tzofim of Oakland for two years prior. I also directed the Olam Yeladim after-school program in Oakland and have worked as a teacher and coordinator for Midrasha, the East Bay high school program. I love to do art with kids as well as midrash, creative projects and anything hands-on. I am also a writer and am completing a Master of Fine Arts in Writing & Consciousness from New College, just down the street from CSZ!

I am especially excited by the warmth, exuberance and creativity of the children and adults I have met at Sha'ar Zahav. Please feel free to contact me at 415/575-4962 or educator@shaarzahav.org to introduce yourselves or to offer any ideas or feedback. L'hitraot!

Our Fabulous, Annual Purim Carnival Blowout

Saturday, March 10 at 11 am

American Halloween copied the Jewish celebration of Purim (I'm sure of it), so don your most fabulous costume and come celebrate at Sha'ar Zahav's annual Purim Carnival on the Saturday following Purim. As is our tradition, we invite all families to bring their old household toys to serve as prizes. Your child's old Power Ranger doll can be someone else's great new find! We will have games, booths, prizes and a costume contest. Rumor has it that one of our educators may put on a special performance as part of the festivities. All are encouraged to come, help with the booths, dress up, be campy and have fun.

thorough conversations with each of them on the topics of homelessness, campaign finance reform and the Middle East peace process. We wanted to address issues that affect us locally, nationally and internationally as Jews and as Americans. Through these conversations, Jonah discovered his talent and love for politics. He feels this opportunity changed his life.

Baby Havurah

Saturday, March 24, 9:30 am

Join us for Shabbat morning stretch and play! Songs, toys, bubbles, finger plays and a mini-service puppet show are not to be missed by the 24-month and under set.

Tot Shabbat

Saturday, March 24, 10:30 am

Tot Shabbat is for children aged 2-5, their friends and families. We come together for an age-appropriate service filled with art, storytelling, singing, prayer and movement.

Kadimah Family and Children's Read-a-Thon

Our school needs your support. This month all Kadimah children are taking part in a read-a-thon to encourage them to read Jewish books and, at the same time, to raise money for our educational programs. Children not enrolled in Kadimah are also invited to participate and help raise money for all our educational programs. Sponsor sheets are available from Riqi Kosovske, our educator. Parents can help by reading books with their children. The community can help out by sponsoring our children and encouraging them to read.

For more information about any of these programs, or to RSVP, contact Jeni Markowitz, (familyeducator@shaarzahav.org), or Riqi Kosovske (educator@shaarzahav.org), or call 415/575-4962.

So, what's next for us Sha'ar Zahav teens? We hope to be able to attend next year's RAC along with taking some other trips together. We would like to express the utmost thanks to Rabbi Camille Angel for the adventure of a lifetime. We are incredibly enthusiastic about the future, about our life at Sha'ar Zahav, and about the possibility of truly making a difference.

Tikkun Olam/Social Action

Sukkot in April is Coming

Sunday, April 29

Set aside April 29 and get your paint brushes ready! Sukkot in April is just around the corner and we want all past participants to return and newcomers to give it a try.

For those of you who have never heard of Sukkot in April, let me explain. Our congregation, along with other congregations and Jewish organizations around the Bay Area get together to paint, garden, clean and renovate homes belonging to senior citizens and the disabled. We also help to renovate buildings owned by non-profit organizations. For the past four years, Congregation Sha'ar Zahav has been a leader in Sukkot in April. We have provided 50 volunteers each year, and we have successfully contributed to the renovation of three large community buildings: the Asian Pacific Islander Wellness Center, the Westside Community Mental Health Center and the San Christina Residence. Last year we had the great opportunity to renovate the private residence of an elderly woman whose gratitude made it all worthwhile.

Tom Whiting, Alex Davido,
Willie Mae Edwards,
Dahlia Gross and Michael Schaeffer

Please join us this year for our fifth annual Sukkot in April community action project. You don't need to have any special skills and we provide all the tools and food! You just need to be over fourteen and have a fun attitude. Please fill out the enclosed form and return it by March 31 to Dahlia Gross, CSZ Program Director at 290 Dolores Street, San Francisco, CA 94103.

If you have any questions, feel free to call Laura Lowe at 415/247-2409.

We look forward to working with you.

Social Action Committee's Senior Outreach Lunch in the Tenderloin

Friday, March 16, 1 pm

Are you the type of person who wants to repair the world [tikkun olam], but simply can't find the time? If so, consider donating two hours this March with the guarantee of making someone smile and touching someone's heart. Each year Congregation Sha'ar Zahav has the honor of working with Jewish Family and Children's Services at the North of Market Senior Center serving a Shabbat lunch. Join us this year for a special Purim Luncheon with hamantashen, songs, and joy.

RSVP to Allan Berenstein 415/863-8033 or Dahlia Gross 415/575-4961.

Happy

This month, we profile Congregation Sha'ar Zahav's youngest adult member, Larry Kaplun, who is 20 years old. "It is so gratifying to be acknowledged and respected by people I don't even know," explains Larry in response to the obvious question: How does it feel to be the youngest adult member of the synagogue?

"There really aren't enough young people who go to synagogue," remarks Larry. While he admits he hasn't taken a poll, he thinks a lot of kids were forced to go to Hebrew school and some aren't sure that religion is important. Larry went to Hebrew school all the way through bar mitzvah, then enrolled for a semester at Hebrew High at the University of Judaism in Los Angeles, but soon lost interest.

When he was 17, Larry explored his spirituality. "I was aware that I had a soul and began exploring issues of mindfulness and compassion for myself," Larry said. "I was unhappy when I was younger and needed a release." Spirituality provided that release for Larry and gave him the confidence to relocate to San Francisco when he turned 18. "I was never much of a risk taker. But I knew that I did not want to defend my life to other people," explains Larry. He moved up here and lived at the Larkin Street Youth Center Transitional Living Program. "It was home. I was learning new skills about life - balancing a checkbook, doing laundry, getting my GED and cooking. The love and support from people off the bat felt great. I felt free," recounts Larry. He admits that it is still a struggle to be on his own, but he is more comfortable with who he is and how much he has gained and grown.

Judaism provides a different component to Larry's spiritual life. When in synagogue, Larry feels compassion, mindfulness and closeness to God. Singing in Hebrew and praying quietly make synagogue a different place for Larry. "Sometimes I am exhausted and falling asleep. Sometimes my mind wanders - thinking 'I'm hungry,' or 'What am I doing after CSZ' or 'Hmm, the rabbi has some funky hats.' Other times I am deep in prayer and time flies - 'Wow, we're at the Aleinu already!' I have found that reading the English helps me understand what we are singing about.

"The liturgy, especially the poetry, and having a lesbian rabbi make CSZ more interesting than other Reform synagogues," notes Larry. Larry is a Friday night regular and is hopeful that he can help revitalize La'atid. When asked what CSZ can do to attract more young people, Larry comments, "People have to want to be there. But if they do, CSZ is a great choice. It's open and accepting and so diverse."

Next month marks Larry's two-year anniversary of moving to San Francisco and the life that Larry has built here is remarkable. "My experience at Larkin Street has helped inspire me to want to work at a non-profit, so I can give back what I received," he mentions. When he is not working, Larry likes to write. And he loves to read. (just read Beloved, is re-reading Paradise and wants to dig into Song of Solomon, all by Toni Morrison). "I don't know why a white Jewish boy with Russian parents and grandparents finds stories of slavery inspirational, but I do!" And Larry likes to watch films. "Working in a video store, I am always being begged to recommend the greatest movie I have never seen," jokes Larry.

In keeping with our tradition, we asked Larry four questions to help us better understand why this member is different from all other members.

1. What has been your deepest spiritual experience?

Larry speaks about these past High Holidays as a profound and unique experience for him. 5761 was the first time Larry attended High Holiday services at Sha'ar Zahav and he did not know what to expect. "It was the first time I felt comfortable. As a kid, I remember sitting for hours - sleeping until I was slapped, begging to go to the bathroom so I could hide," recalls Larry about holidays past. This year was a totally different experience. The beautiful building, music and poetry combined with the solidarity of purpose among everyone there moved Larry to a different place. "This year Yom Kippur provided a day to focus on myself, to accept anger and fear, to find a place for the depression I sometimes feel and to give gratitude for the life I have made," Larry said.

2. If you were to ask one favor of God, what would it be?

Acknowledging that this is a tough question, Larry replies, "I really would not want it to be a favor, something small." After pausing and thinking through a couple of different ideas, Larry decides to pray for peace. "I would ask God to help me through fear and to learn from it. Realizing that it is important to experience fear, I would want to take that experience and put it into my future with a sense of peacefulness," explains Larry.

3. What is your favorite Jewish memory?

"Hanukah, always Hanukah," Larry replied quickly. "It was always a blast," he continued. Larry describes Hanukah memories of singing, lighting candles, eating chocolate gelt and getting money from his family. With those memories, how could Hanukah not be a favorite?

4. What are you most looking forward to?

Larry responded on two different levels. On a personal level, he would like to write a novel and perhaps learn to speak Russian. "Oy! If my grandmother could hear that!" he quips. On a more general level, he hopes that growth and wisdom will always be part of his experience.

Please join me in extending a warm welcome to Larry Kaplun. We hope that CSZ will grow and learn along with Larry and other young, new members of the synagogue.

over an hour among sixty people. Discussion of significant topics is hindered when the group is too large for each of the participants to express an opinion. And even with the ever-expanding size of the Advance, we hear from members who are distressed at not being invited to the Advance, or who, having been invited, find it difficult to attend because of our inability to invite life partners and children.

This year, the Va'ad has come to the conclusion that in trying to achieve so much for so many, the Advance is in danger of failing to achieve either its leadership development role or its function as a forum for intensive debate and renewal. The Va'ad is therefore planning a new direction for the Advance, essentially splitting it into two annual events, one being a smaller and more focused leadership weekend, and the other a larger, more inclusive congregational gathering, offering a menu of discussion, spirituality, learning and unabashed fun. It is anticipated that the new arrangements will be fully implemented in 2002. To my knowledge, Sha'ar Zahav will be the first Reform congregation to offer a weekend experience like this to its entire membership. As usual, we are pacesetters.

Events of this magnitude require a considerable amount of early planning. It is not too soon to be thinking about how you want this new congregational experience to emerge. If you find this new event appealing, consider volunteering to help with planning, starting with a new name. You can make your mark on this exciting new gathering. Just picture CSZ generations to come remembering you as the founder of the "Sha'ar Zahav Annual [your name here] Water Ballet, Symposium and Talmud Bake-Off!"

Appreciation

Lyssa Friedman summed it up: it takes a congregation to make a bar mitzvah. We want to thank CSZ for making Shmulik's bar mitzvah such a meaningful event in our lives. The participation of so many members of our community contributed to every aspect of the bar mitzvah. The davening, Torah leyning, singing and the warm, heimish atmosphere would not, indeed could not, have been possible at any other congregation. Many people deserve thanks for being part of what led up to and culminated in the bar mitzvah. They include teachers, Shmulik's service leading mentors, Rabbi Camille Shira Angel, CSZ staff and friends Phyllis Mintzer, David Shneer, Caryn Aviv, Jen Levinson, Elise Fineberg, Lea Salem, Melanie Kushner, Rabbi Dorothy A. Richman, Brian Besser, Tiela Chalmers, Dev Felder Noily, Jonathan Pannor, Howard Steiermann, Nina Wouk, Ora Prochovnick, Danny Kodmur, Rabbi Yoel Kahn, Dan Belm, Jeff Piade, Frank Yellin and Rose Katz. If we have inadvertently omitted a name, know that we send our heartfelt thanks. Todah rabah, a sheynm dank. We look forward to celebrating many more simchas with CSZ.

impressions: "Rabbi Angel, you have such special students!" "They are eager to learn and to participate, to meet and befriend lots of new people; they are charming, sensitive, responsible and kind in spirit." These are just some of the comments I heard that stick out in my mind. Now, I know it comes as no surprise to many of you who have watched these and the other kids from among the first generation of Kadimah grow up, to hear that our kids are phenomenally special. But many people who know of Sha'ar Zahav - its origin, history with and commitment to the GLBT community - were curious to meet and not afraid to ask our students about growing up at Sha'ar Zahav, about having two moms, about growing up in such a gay positive community.

I believe that in these four full days, we expanded and deepened people's consciousness and awareness and sensitivity in all sorts of subtle and profound ways - that the RAC staff could not have planned for or pulled off better - simply because we were there. I can't kvell enough - we, as a congregation, cannot be more proud and hopeful that the next generation has already begun to make this world a more fair, kind and just society. By establishing this synagogue and committing our time, energy and money to our community, our religious school and our youth programming, we all have had a hand in raising these kids. Thank God for the privilege of helping to teach these kids and to witness their courage and commitment as they themselves find their voices and realize their power, capability and responsibility to engage in tikkun olam - the politics of repair.

Our students have written about some of the highlights from the trip for this issue of the Gaily Forward. I encourage you to read what they wrote and then to ask them to share with you in more detail their personal memories. In the months ahead, we will be co-leading services together, getting involved with the Social Action Committee and inviting the congregation to join with us in our sacred pursuits.

An Interview with the Singing Havurah's Michael Sarid.

by Leslie Kane

"Variety is the spice of Jewish music," says Michael Sarid, founder of CSZ's Singing Havurah. The Havurah meets on the second Shabbat of each month at 3 pm at the Mishkan to sing Jewish songs. "We sing everything - Hebrew liturgical music, Ladino and Yiddish, Israeli folk songs, Jewish camp favorites, Hebrew choral music and new compositions by contemporary composers." As founder, Michael graciously performs the role of programmer, choosing a theme, selecting the songs, photocopying music and lyrics, teaching, sending out reminders and cajoling participants into leading a song they know. "Since we only meet once a month, it's not unusual for a holiday to be approaching, so the holiday often serves as our theme. I try to find music associated with the upcoming holiday or the holiday liturgy."

Everyone is welcome at the Singing Havurah. Michael is quick to point out that, "You don't have to read music or have a great voice. But you must love to sing." About 15-20 CSZ members make up the core of the Singing Havurah. However, lots of folks have lent their voices to the Havurah from its beginning, eight months ago. "CSZ members, out-of-towners who are visiting CSZ friends, and folks from the Jewish community who have heard about us through the grapevine have spent the afternoon singing with us," Michael notes. And no one leaves without having sung at least ten different version of Adon Olam. Michael warns that, "Gilbert and Sullivan, Mozart, Bizet, Gershwin, TV show themes - you name it - are all fair game for Adon Olam." The Havurah next meets on March 10 at 3 pm and the theme is Pesach. Michael has some fun in store, so come join us!

A Thank You from the San Francisco Food Bank

by Paul Ash, Executive Director of the Food Bank

On behalf of the San Francisco Food Bank, I thank you for sponsoring a food drive during the High Holidays. Congregation Sha'ar Zahav raised 1,394 pounds of food during the food drive. This donation will help to provide wholesome meals at 400 after-school programs, senior centers, shelters and soup kitchens, and through meal delivery programs for the disabled, the elderly, and people living with AIDS. I am grateful for your generous response to the need in our community.

Ten congregations and Jewish organizations participated in the High Holidays Food Drive. Together, these congregations contributed 14,564 pounds of food — an increase of 16 percent over 1999. To add to the generosity of the Jewish community, the Elise and Walter Haas Fund pledged to match every pound raised during the High Holidays with a gift of 50 cents. As a result, the fund will augment its annual support of the San Francisco Food Bank with a special grant of $7,282.
